SCHOOL RESUMES MONDAY FOR 5000 PUPILS

THE TOWN RECORD

By MONTE DAYTON

Back riding the split infinitive and dangling participle circuit again after basking in the high country of the Midland Empire, this writer was surprised to see SGT. BILL BOLGER back turning the trick again at the local police office after an absence of several months.

Though his face showed the loss of a few pounds, his cheery attitude didn't give away the fact that he spent some 27 days in the hospital, fighting off attacks by various MDs equipped with tools of the clinical trade.

Mayor ANTHONY (his face is red) GAGGERO got his car heisted from him Tuesday practically in view of some dozen civic officials and town noteworthies.

While taking part in the opening "ceremonies" at the Westlake park site, some dingy no-goods hooked the mayor's car off Lake Merced boulevard.

Just about 45 minutes earlier hizzoner had commented to councilman ED DENNIS, "Do you think my car will be safe there? I left the keys in it."

And Tony's an insurance man. For shame.

ED CEREGHINO, Daly City's most talented offering to the great American sport, baseball, slipped back into town this week (now living at 8 Second avenue, apt. 3), bringing with him his wife.

Cereghinos (my informers report) will be three soon.

The Lions Bulletin increased Colma Mayor JOHN NEWTON'S holdings considerably last week.

The bulletin referred to him as (and I quote) "Owner and Mayor of Colma."

What the bulletin boys meant was that John was owner of a flower shop and Mayor of Colma.

There have been plenty instances where the title mayor was synonymous with property rights, but knowing Honest John Newton, we are assured it was merely an erroneous and unintentional bit of syntax on the part of Ye Lion editors.

Speaking of the feline friends (a helluva way to get around saying Lions again), JOE RICOMI of SSF, who will visit the local club at their luncheon meeting Wednesday, is what you might call a dyed-in-the-wool Daly Citizen.

Joe, the Lions zone chairman, was born and raised in this hyar city and, besides, he's an uncle of that highly propelled clubman, JOE BELLI (not pronounced "belly" unless you smile when you say it.)

MRS. VIOLET HAUPTTI, 56 Belford drive, had the bad luck to drop her anatomy on her elbow about two weeks ago, resulting in a fracture of that appendage.

After a spell at St. Mary's hospital, she has returned home and reports the damaged elbow on the mend.

A baby girl came into the life of MR. and MRS. GEORGE DE BONO Wednesday, Sept. 2.

George, one of Daly City's first-string firemen, sweated it out until 1:30 p.m. on the B-day, when wife VIOLA gave birth to a 6 lb. 6 oz. girl at Stanford hospital.

For their first-born they picked

An intensified search throughout Los Angeles and the swank gambling parlors of Lake Tahoe, Reno and Las Vegas continued today for Ralph Lawrence, 30-year-old advertising director of the Henry Doelger company, who in less than two years made off with upwards of $30,000 of the firm's money.

Warrant for his arrest on nearly a dozen counts of grand theft has been signed.

Albert M. Crane, comptroller for the Doelger company, said the $30,000 figure would probably grow as further investigation of Lawrence's alleged "business-like" swindle continued.

Daly City Acting Police Inspector Dave Johnstone, who is handling the case, told how Lawrence made off with huge chunks of the firm's money: "First he'd make out statements on non-existant companies, and draw checks from the company for the amount. He then endorsed the checks back to himself."

The flashy maneuver wasn't uncovered until the arrival of Albert M. Crane, who assumed position as comptroller for Doelger August 3.

Crane at one time observed Lawrence flashing $4500 at the office. The money, Lawrence said, was won in Nevada.

While Lawrence was vacationing, Crane made a routine investigation. According to Inspector Johnstone, "more and more discrepancies began to appear."

Apparently, Lawrence got wind that his scheme was suspected.

His wife, Alice, mother of a three-month-old boy, reported him missing from their home on 20 Lynnewood drive on Tuesday, August 25.

Only clue to his location since then was a check for $30 cashed by Lawrence in Los Angeles Wednesday, Sept. 2.

This also led to the belief that Lawrence's "small fortune"

CLEARING WORK PROCEEDS ON WESTLAKE PARK SITE

AN INTERESTED delegation of local civic officials was on hand Tuesday at the Westlake park site near Lake Merced boulevard, where clearing of the area was started by the Jenecke company of Mountain View. The ten-acre site will contain a baseball diamond, playground facilities and picnic area. Work is expected to be completed in about two weeks. At the helm of the "cat" is Mayor Anthony Gaggero. Others in picture, left to right, are: Councilman Edward J. Dennis, Recreation Director James Mason, Councilman Paul Green, Mrs. Anne Eason, Mrs. Gordon Carlson, City Administrator Dan Andersen and Tom Laramie. Mrs. Eason, Mrs. Carlson and Laramie are members of the recreation commission. Not present from the commission for the picture were Edward Cavagnaro, chairman, and Walter Gillies.

GREEN DENIES CONTROL

Councilman Paul Green this week labelled as "a slap at the rest of the council," the statement by former city engineer Robert A. Klassen that the local government is "dominated" by himself.

The former mayor said it was "stupid to say that five men on the council could be dominated by one man."

Klassen voiced his protest against Green last week and at the same time asserted that the city had not paid him for some $6000 in fees for work done while he was acting as engineer on the Brunswick street extension project.

Will Not Quit

The ex-city engineer said this week that he would not relax his efforts to get the money for his services. "I've got too much invested in this to quit now," he added.

Green said that the council is investigating Klassen's claim for the $6000, but explained that "we thought the figure a little high."

According to Green, the payment would probably have been made long ago, except for the fact that the Brunswick project was not yet completed.

"It's customary to make payments for services when the work is done," Green said.

The Brunswick wall collapsed last winter, resulting in suits against the city amounting to more than $100,000.

Since that time the city has secured the services of another engineer to replace Klassen on the Brunswick work. Klassen was replaced as city engineer two years ago by Edwin Smith, but had agreed to work on a fee basis on the Brunswick project until its completion.

Council Will Check

Green said that the council was "entitled to check the bill."

Dan Andersen, city administrator, has already been instructed by the council to compile the necessary data on the Brunswick work done by Klassen.

Whether the matter would be brought up at this Monday's council meet was not known.

"Reports Overlooked"

Klassen claims that he had earlier submitted detailed reports and bills on the work, but that none of his correspondence was taken up during the public meetings. Last week he produced copies of the reports he had submitted. He said he would give the council time to consider his claim, but would take more drastic action if the matter was delayed further.

Meanwhile, the council planned to call for bids Monday night for construction of another wall on the Brunswick hill.

Green estimated that it would cost the city another $20,000 to complete the project.

Elementary Grades Will Greet 3800; 1250 Expected At Jefferson High School

An estimated 5000 youngsters will answer the bell Monday morning when school commences for the Jefferson elementary and high school districts.

Total enrollment for the high and elementary schools is expected to top last year's by nearly 500, but district administrators predict that the influx can be handled adequately.

1250 At Jeff High

Stanford Hannah, superintendent of the high school, estimated that 1250 youngsters, 125 more than last year, would enroll.

Fifteen new teachers will assume duties at the high school and the total staff will be up four over the previous year.

Hannah said regular bus service will be provided, with one more bus serving the district this year. The new bus was acquired to serve the growing coastside area. This will bring to three the number of buses handling the 170 Jefferson students living on the coast. Hannah pointed out that the increase in enrollment from this area accounted for about half of the jump in registratiaon.

The high school cafeteria will be in operation Monday to provide luncheon.

New Teachers Meet

All new high school teachers will meet today (Friday) morning at 10 a.m. and Saturday the entire staff will gather from 10:30 to 12 a.m. and 1 until 2:30 p.m. for a teachers' institute.

Hannah urged new students to report today so that they may prepare their program for the coming year.

Elementary Schools

Classes at the majority of the elementary schools will commence at 9 a.m., with those schools on double sessions beginning at 8 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Lst year's enrollment of 3500 is expected to be swelled some 300, according to H. Z. Weibel, superintendent of the elementary district. A total of 41 new teachers will bring the size of the staff to 121 classroom instructors. The estimated enrollment Monday of 3800 brought out sharply the rapid increase in community growth during past years. The opening enrollment in 1951 was 2922 and 3360 in 1952.

Double Sessions

Double sessions will be held at the Colma and Crocker schools, two classes at Woodrow Wilson

H. Z. Weibel
. . . Predicts 3800

and four classes at Jefferson elementary.

Double sessions will last from 8 to 12 a.m. and from 12:30 to 4:45 p.m.

Registration for new students will be held all day tomorrow (Friday) at the district schools. Weibel urged all parents to have their children register early to avoid confusion on Monday.

Lunch At Home

Weibel also asked that, when possible, children return home for their lunch period. He said that accommodations for lunch hour are not yet completed at most of the schools.

With the commencement of classes Monday, Daly City's youth will be hitting the books steady until Wednesday, November 25. At that time they will be given a five-day Thanksgiving holiday.

The next vacation of any length is the Christmas holiday, which

BODIEN CAREER CLOSES AFTER FORTY YEARS

Arthur J. Bodien, veteran public servant of the city of Daly City, turned over his keys to the city administrator Tuesday marking the close of more than 40 years of eminent service to this city.

Bodien's job as superintendent of the water department came to an official close this week.

He first entered public life in 1912, and never was for removed from the scene thereafter.

In addition to serving three terms on the city council of Daly City, Bodien was director of civilian defense here, assistant fire chief for 20 years, superintendent of public works, city purchasing agent, superintendent of streets, U. S. Property Agent during the war, Boy Scout Commissioner for North San Mateo county, president of the North San Mateo Council of Boy Scouts and San Mateo county planning commissioner.

At present, no one has been secured to replace Bodien. The next water department superintendent will be known as head of public works.

Bodien will be feted at a dinner October 6 to be given in his honor.

SNAKE BITES BOY; ENDS UP IN JAR

Dick Courtney, seven-year-old youth of 5 Wildwood court went snake hunting last Thursday in the "wilds" of Broadmoor and found that his prey could be mean critters.

When pursuing a garter snake at 911 Foothill boulevard, the reptile turned on his and sank its "fangs" in his hand.

The police were summoned by observers who thought the snake might be poisonous, but the attacking animal was found to be of the harmless variety.

Young Courtney, however, was oblivious of all the furor about him. He went right on and caught the snake and its two young.

He's got them in a glass and plans to exhibit them at school Monday, along with his punctured finger.

NO MOTOR MISHAPS IN DALY CITY OVER LABOR DAY HOLIDAY

Daly City, traffic-wise, escaped the Labor Day weekend unscathed, local police report.

Only "a couple" of minor fender scrapes were recorded by local officers.

TELLER COMPLETES 25 YEARS SERVICE

Miss Lillah Edyth Brown, note teller of the Daly City branch of Bank of America, has completed a quarter century of service to the bank in this branch, it was announced today. Miss Brown began her career with the bank in 1928 as a stenographer and typist, and in the 25 years of service in the Daly City branch she held such positions as clerk, bookkeper, commercial teller and note teller. She is a native of San Francisco. Miss Brown is now eligible for membership in the bank's Quarter Century Club, an organization composed exclusively of officers and staff members with 25 years or more service. More than 2,000 members of this club are active on the bank's staff today.

FIRST LOCAL KOREAN POW IS RELEASED

Staff Sergeant Charles B. Schlicter, 33, the first Daly City man to be released in the Korean prisoner of war exchange, returned to freedom Friday, September 4.

His wife Mrs. Elizabeth Schlicter, 81 Crestwood drive, Apt. 9, greeted the news with rejoicing, when she learned that her husband had been released in the final stage of the prisoner of war exchange.

For over two years, Mrs. Schlicter had no news of her husband, not knowing whether he was captured or missing in action. She received her first letter from him earlier this year indicating that he

District Governor Of Lions Will Address Local Club

Guest speaker of the Daly City-Colma Lions Wednesday at their Ladies day luncheon meeting will be G. T. "Pat" Carroll, district governor of the Lions in District 4B-2.

Carroll will address the group on Lionism and how it fits into the life of an individual and a community.

The honored guest, who hails from Watsonville, is a former president of the local Lions there, is president of the Pajaro Valley Memorial park and the Mission Memorial park in Monterey.

Accompanying him will be zone chairman Joe Ricomi of South San Francisco.

The local Lions Wednesday gathering was not held this week due to the holiday.

Cops Turn Chiselers; Rescue Trapped Tyke

Little Carter Corey Jr., two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carter Corey of No. 2 Randall court in Broadmoor, can take apart stone walls, indirectly.

Because of him a good portion of his father's hollow concrete fence was torn down in an episode that took place Tuesday in Broadmoor.

Young Carter was frolicking in the front yard and stuck his foot, from the knee down, into the fence which his father was building.

Patrolman Don Tannehill was summoned to the scene and put in a sweaty but unsuccessful 20 minutes trying to extricate the foot.

Calling in reserve strength in the person of Police Chief Ray Savage, the rescue work was begun again.

Using a chisel, the two officers hacked away for forty minutes on the stone wall and finally undid the damage.

The Coreys, all three, were relieved and papa Corey said afterward, "I wouldn't have cared if they tore the whole wall down."

HEARING FOR ALLEGED SWINDLER IS DELAYED

Preliminary hearing for Harry Barton, San Franciscan who allegedly bilked Mrs. Maxine Irwin, 6025 Mission street, Daly City, of $689, was postponed yesterday (Thursday) and set for Tuesday at 10 a.m. in municipal court.

Mrs. Irwin said she gave Barton the money to purchase equipment for a cleaning establishment. The equipment was delivered, but it was the property of a San Francisco firm.

Barton, an English citizen, is believed to be free on $1000 bail posted with immigration authorities.

JEFF ELEMENTARY DISTRICT WILL ADOPT $1 SCHOOL INSURANCE PLAN

A blanket insurance policy for school children, costing only $1 per school term, was secured by the Jefferson elementary school district board of trustees at their last meeting.

The policy covers children at school and on the way to and from school, provides hospital services up to $1500, dentist services, medical services and an accidental death clause.

According to the trustees, at least 75 per cent of the children attending school must be covered in order to make the plan effective. The insurance company offering the policy is the Washington National Insurance company of Evanston, Ill.

The insurance plan was in effect in the Redwood City schools last year with satisfactory results, the trustees pointed out.

In other business, the board:

1. Approved a proposal by the city administrator to share cost of eliminating the draining ditch along Market street near the Colma school.

2. Awarded contracts for maintenance and repairs to the following: R. A. Luther, Hayward, painting the Thornton school trim with two coats—$850; Gigli Plumbing company, Daly City, plumbing work at Garden Village school—$1291; Fred E. Turner company, San Francisco, installing cork board at Crocker, Jefferson and Woodrow Wilson schools—$999; Bay Electric company, San Francisco, installing of modern lighting fixtures at Thornton school — $1452; Daly City Blind and Shade, installing of drapery at the Westlake school—$350.

3. Approved use of a classroom for night meetings by the mothers of the Village Play school.

4. Noted a report from the county assessor's office showing the value placed on land and equipment belonging to the elementary district to amount to $628,400.

5. Passed a resolution calling for condemnation of three parcels of property in the Vista Grande site

Of the more than half a million Americans (that's what the publicity release says) who will visit Europe this year is LUCIA BRANN, 385 Bellevue avenue.

She will visit London on her tour.

One of the area's top baseball aggregations, the Sarto Athletic club, may be wiped out of business by Gen. Hershey and his hungry band of selective service henchmen.

The Sarto club's TITO SARTO, LEO GIANNECHINE and JOHNNY OLCESE, are all standing in the draft.

At least they'll have the nucleus of a ball club to play in the khaki spangles.

A couple of Daly City's money changers (a nasty word for those nice people that work at banks) got their pics in Bankamerican, the Bank of America's national mag.

Pretty CARMEN MORO was included because of her singing role in the Peninsula production, "Merry Widow," while NEVA ALMEIDA, another comely banking lass, was shown beside the DC branch's new Express window.

We saw this thought-provoking sign along the roadside on the outskirts of Healdsburg, Calif., at 6 p.m. Labor Day just after we had passed lots of tempting cafes and restaurants throughout the town: "OKEY, GO HUNGRY!" Scouts' honor! No advertising on the sign . . . just those words!

LAW IN ACTION

USEFULNESS OF CONTRACTS

Without contracts you would never dream of starting a business today. With a contract, you know that if the plans you make with others are not carried out, you can go to court and make the other parties do their part or pay you damages. And they, too, can make plans—knowing that the contract binds you as well. In the main experience affirms the usefulness of the contract. Let us see how.

Suppose you are a shoemaker. Once, your problem was simple. After an apprenticeship, you inherited your father's skills, tools and materials. You did business in the village among your neighbors like Hans Christian Anderson.

But today you need machinery, credits, markets. At each step you can move ahead only by contract. Your suppliers contract to deliver your machinery, leather, thread and nails at a stated price and by a given time.

Because you have these contracts you can take your next step. You contract to hire workers and pay them a specified amount. You borrow the cash from your bank under a contract to keep going until the money from your sales begins to come in.

FEW CONTRACTS REACH COURT

A surprising thing about contracts is that, in view of the billions in effect, so few ever reach our courts.

First, most people want to carry out their agreements in good faith. They value their good name. Second, they know that courts can enforce the terms of a contract.

Everybody has a stake in the proper enforcement of our contracts. Where rights are violated we want justice done. We want to protect our basic way of doing business. In one form or another, the courts see that the rare cases which become lawsuits are settled justly.

NOTE: The State Bar of California offers this column for your information so that you may know more about how to act under our laws.

NICKEL IRONS

Because of its strength and toughness, nickel alloy cast iron is used widely in the machine tool industry for the beds of lathes and other machine tools, as well as for engine blocks and cylinder heads of gasoline and Diesel engines.

Optic, El Crepusculo, El Defensor, El Nuevo Mexicano, and El Independiente, are, according to the National Automobile Club, names of some of the newspapers in New Mexico.

THE WISE PEDESTRIAN

The wise pedestrian, points out the National Automobile Club, crosses only at interesections or at properly designated crosswalks and he crosses only with the lights. He keeps his head up, his eyes open, and his mind alert. He treats all traffic with proper respect. He knows that if he walks carelessly, he can get himself killed.

The memory garden at the rear of Old Pacific House in Monterey, a hotel built in 1847, is a romantic feature of the establishment.

Inconsiderate Auto Thieves Drive Off In Mayor's Car

Thieves have no respect for station in Daly City, as Mayor Anthony Gaggero discovered Tuesday.

The mayor parked his car on Lake Merced boulevard Tuesday morning and walked over several hundred yards to the Westlake park site, where clearing of the area was in initial stages.

Other observers, city officials and members of the recreation commission, drove straight to the park site, finding safety in numbers.

While city fathers and onlookers watched the "cat" remove brush from the area, the mayor's car was heisted and he and son, Bob, had to "thumb" a ride back to town.

Daly City police sent out a bulletin on the "hot" car, and it was discovered that same evening at Redwood City.

There was no apparent damage, except to the mayor's dignity.

THAT BRUNSWICK AFFAIR

All the fuss and fuming over the Brunswick street extension and the dramatis personnae involved therein gives further weight to the belief that all matters of public activity should be treated as such.

Robert Klassen, engineer for the project, revealed last week that the council had shunted his bill of $6000 for services by merely neglecting to bring the matter up at its public gatherings.

Now the whole situation takes on exaggerated shades of political connivance, blackguard trickery and other such forms of subversiveness.

Had the matter been brought out in the council meetings, which it rightfully should have been, since Klassen had his business entered on the agenda, the controversy would have boiled down to the facts.

But, for some reason—perhaps, as Klassen claims—a councilman was "displeased" with him—the matter was shoved back and forth into obscure crannies of the city hall.

Now that the situation has come to light it does not speak well for the council.

How much other public business gets this heave-ho treatment, we are not prepared to say:

But, if discretion be the better part of valor, we would advise the council to maintain an oral policy on all activities affecting the public, rather than sit on unpleasant business until the principals involved get rightfully sore.

GOING UP --- ANOTHER PARK

Daly City's park and recreation program moved forward Tuesday with the beginning of work on the Westlake park site.

This ten-acre park, which will contain a baseball field, playground and, in all probability, a picnic ground, will do much to enhance the community.

The Westlake area, now bulging with a population of more than 8000, has had an acute need for recreational facilities.

The recreation department and commission with, of course, the concurrence of the city council, have used foresight in the undertaking of the park there.

Daly City's recreation program, though it grinds exceedingly slow as do all movements affected by the tide of government, holds promise of becoming the finest in the county.

We know that all things work together for good to them that love God. (Romans 8:28.) Read Romans 8:26-28.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century, the African continent was unconsciously witnessing a great event. Colonists were weaving their way across hundreds of miles of uncharted land. Among them was Paul Kruger, a boy of ten, a future president of the Transvaal Republic. The moving cavalcade clashed with a native tribe. A native slave boy, Magata, escaped and fled southward.

He became influenced by a pioneer Christian missionary. Soundly converted, he desired to return to the Transvaal in order to preach the Gospel. Arriving there, he was bound to a wagon, flogged, and expelled from the province.

In his wanderings, he heard of the President of the Republic, Paul Kruger, who at the age of ten had been one of the colonists in the Great Trek. Magata wrote to him. The president granted him sanctuary in the Transvaal. Joyfully, Magata returned to establish the first Society, from which small beginning great things have been done there for God.

PRAYER

Limited though my gifts may be, O God, I offer myself to be witness for Thee. Grant me fruit for Thee through labor. So teach me new joys in the adventure of living for Thee. Through Christ, my Savior. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

No Christian's labors for God are in vain.

DISABLED VETS PAID ON BASIS OF DEPENDENTS

Disabled veterans receiving monthly compensation checks for service-connected conditions more than 50 perent disabling are reminded by Floyd D. Granger, Veterans Service Officer of San Mateo County, that the amount they get is based in part on the number of their dependents. Any change in the number of dependents should be brought to the attention of the Veterans Administration right away.

"Under the law," said Granger, "veterans who have disabilities due to service, rated at 50 percent or more, are entitled to extra allowances for wives, minor children, and dependent parents. Payments start on the date that proof of relationship and dependency is received by the VA. They are discontinued when the dependency relationship ceases.

"Veterans filing such claims for the first time—when they get married, for example — should furnish their evidence at the time of filing, and in this case payments are made from the date the claim is effective. Satisfactory evidence of relationship must be furnished, and in the case of parents, proof of dependency is required."

It was emphasized by Granger, that dependents' allowances are given only for serious disabilities (50 percent or more) incurred in military service, for which compensation is being paid. The allowances are not given for non-service-connected conditions for which pensions are paid.

Advice as to what is "satisfactory evidence" and assistance in filing dependency statements are available to veterans and their dependents at the Veterans Service Office, in the Courthouse, Redwood City.

My Mad World

By Leonore Brewer

Did I ever tell you of the opera we added to our record collection, sound unheard? In all honesty, until we saw the title we had never even heard of it. Yet, unhesitatingly, we put down our money and carried home La Battaglia di Legnano. You might say that anyone who would invest in three LP's without listening to even the overture was balmy. Please feel quite free to do so.

We felt quite secure in adding this opera to our collection. Why not? The composer was Verdi. It is the 13th of his 26 operas and stands midway between the promise contained in Nabucco, his first great success and the culmination of his genius, Otello. We read the story and it is filled with the treachery and misunderstandings so prevalent in operatic plots. This may seem extraneous to the argument of why we bought the opera, but we have found that it is the somber tragic stories that inspire a composer to his greatest efforts. If, by the third or fourth act, we have not lost a character or two to death or madness, we sense a certain lightness and lack of depth in the music.

We read that at its premiere on January 27, 1849, the opera was greeted with the wildest enthusiasm. The public broke into the dress rehearsal; the theater was decorated with the Italian colors; the entire fourth act was encored. Think of that—the entire fourth act was encored. Compare this reception to the typical audience today, sitting in its seats like sticks, afraid to applaud for fear the critic sitting nearby will cast a withering look in their direction, and tell me—what is wrong with us?

Of course, 1849 in Italy was a stirring time, and some might say that an opera based on an earlier Italian victory couldn't fail. And, too, a Verdi isn't sent into the world every hundred years.

The Battle of Legnano is a wonderful opera. It reflects the tremendous upheaval that was engulfing Europe in 1848. It is lyrical and majestic and has all the melodius line that poured out of Verdi throughout his long life. We are not yet too familiar with it, and thus far it has not replaced Nabucco in our hearts. As we listen to it we are once again aware of our blessings in that we live after Verdi's birth, not before it. True, we miss the tremendous thrill of participating in the premiere of one of his new operas, but what he has left to the world is ours forever.

And each time we play it, we encore the fourth act.

SCHOOL IS OPEN: DRIVE CAREFULLY

Let's make this a safe school opening, without injury to even one of the hundreds of thousands of children returning to school this week, some walking alone on streets to classrooms for the first time. This is the plea sounded today by the California State Automobile Association.

In furtherance of this goal, the CSAA, in cooperation with police and school authorities, is using the theme "School's Open, Drive Carefully." Colorful posters and bumper strips bearing this slogan are being distributed by the motorists' organization. The CSAA appeal for cooperation follows:

"While police and School Safety Patrol members here will provide excellent protection at hazardous corners near schools, all corners cannot be guarded. Drivers must assume added responsibility with reopening of schools by using utmost caution in areas where children are going to and from classrooms.

"Many children will be attending for the first time, and do not realize the traffic hazards they face. Parents of youngsters starting school, or of children going to school at a new location, should accompany them on the first day to select the safest route. Such a route takes account of where police officers and Safety Patrols are stationed, where there are traffic signals and stop signs to permit safe crossing, and where there are less unprotected intersections.

"Since speed is so often a factor in traffic accidents, the wise motorist reduces his speed in school areas and takes no chance that an exuberant youngster will suddenly dart into the street forgetful of passing cars."

USEFUL NOW AND THEN

With all the free air signs around, the car's tire pump may seem unnecessary. Yet, if the motorist will check up on his experience, points out the National Automobile Club, he probably will find several instances in which the pump has come in handy. A car owner who met his first such instance not long ago found the pump absolutely useless as a result of the long non-use.

GI In France Seeks Correspondence

Dear Sir:

I am writing to you asking you for a great favor if you could please put an article in your paper. I am a lonely soldier who is stationed with the American Army in France and would like to correspond with people from Daly City and vicinity.

I like to write and receive letters, but have no one to correspond with. Working in an Army post office and seeing everyone receive mail except myself only adds to my low morale. I would appreciate this favor very much and am hoping to be hearing from someone in Daly City real soon.

Friday, September 9, 1938 — Their goal achieved, the Daly City "barnyard golfers" called it quits last Sunday night after 50 hours of continuous horseshoe pitching.

Victors in the unique marathon were George McLeod and Bill Maloney.

They defeated Garland Seybold and George Walton, 213 games to 19 in a contest that produced a grand total of 3,169 ringers.

Of that total, McLoed the star scored 1,158; Seybold, 865; Maloneu, 662; and Walton 172. The latter was a substitute for Hartman Simmons, who because of a bad hand, withdrew after 26 hours.

The contest started at 6:30 p.m. Friday, September 2, and ended at 8:30 o'clock Sunday night, September 4, before a crowd of several hundred. James Byrne and Melvin Kingan, scorekeepers, were on the job from start to finish.

It is interesting to note that the last two shoes pitched by McLeod and Seybold at 8:30 Sunday night were ringers.

Daly City children will have a gala Hallowe'en party again this year. Initial plans for the affair are now being made by the local post of the American Legion and the Chamber of Commerce.

All Daly City organizations will be invited to participate in sponsoring the grand annual affair.

UP-HILL DRIVING

When you're driving up a hill, be watchful for anything that might happen, warns the California State Automobile Association. You wouldn't think of passing another vehicle on a hill, but how about the other fellow, coming up the other side? Be ready to act quickly in case another driver, coming over the peak of the hill, is crowding over on your side of the road.

How Can I?

Q. How can I remove paint spots from tile or porcelain?

A. Try soaking a piece of absorbent cotton in nail polish remover, and applying this to the paint spots.

Q. How can I get ink stains off wall paper or plaster walls?

A. Wet the spots with water, and then rub them with white magnesia chalk. After the wet chalk dries to a loose powder, brush it off.

Q. How can I remove odor from my hands after peeling onions?

A. Rub the hands with raw celery or parsley before washing them. Or, wet the hands with clear water and rub them thoroughly with salt.

Q. How can I prevent the bottom crust of a pie from getting soggy?

A. Rub it with egg white before you put the filling in. With fruit pies, cover the bottom crust with a thin layer of bread crumbs and then add the fruit filling. The bread crumbs will soak up the excess juice, but you pie will not be too dry.

Q. What is a good, strong mending cement for broken dishes?

A. Alum. Melt the powdered alum by holding it in a spoon over a gas flame, and while it's still soft, rub it over the edges of the two pieces you want to stick together. Then press them together and let dry. You can wash it in hot water after it's put back into use.

Q. How can I polish the nickel faucets in my sink?

A. Rub them with a soft cloth dipped in spirits of ammonia. Wash afterward with hot water and soan, and polish with a soft, dry cloth.

Q. What can I do when grease is spilled on the kitchen linoleum?

A. Pour ice water over the area immediately, and this will make it harden before it has a chance to soak into the linoleum. You can scrape it off with a dull, flat-bladed table knife.

Q. How can I renovate an old, soiled powder puff?

A. Wash it in warm soapsuds, scrubbing the bad spots with a fingernail brush. Don't let lay it out flat to dry, or it may turn sour. Pin it to the sunny side of a window curtain so that air can get at it.

Q. How can I easily clean a velvet dress?

A. Brush off as much dust as you can with a soft brush. Then turn the dress inside out and hang it in the bathroom while you take a hot shower. After it has been steamed in this way, let it dry completely before you handle it again.

Q. How can I clean a parchment lamp shade?

A. By rubbing it with a fresh piece of white bread, an art-gum eraser, or with a cloth dipped in milk.

Q. How can I easily remove a stubborn cap from my nail polish bottle?

A. Try running hot water over the cap for a few minutes.

CALIFORNIA LAWS HELP VETERANS GET SCHOOLING

Young people starting to college this fall should know about some special California laws which may help them if they are veterans, and in some cases if their parents are, or were, veterans, asserted Floyd D. Granger, Veterans Service Officer of San Mateo county.

"One such law," Granger said, "is designed to assist the children of veterans who have service-connected disabilities and limited incomes. This statute says that no state-owned college or university may charge any tuition or incidental fee to a child of any veteran of the United States military service who has a service-connected disability and whose annual income —excluding governmental compensation for his disability—does not exceed $1,800."

Granger also called attention to an act providing that an honorably discharged veteran who satisfactorily completed the first half of the 12th grade before entering military service may be granted a high school diploma.

Another California law provides that veterans, even though they did not graduate from high school, may under certain conditions be allowed to enter a Junior College and complete their high school education there.

It was further pointed out by Granger that certain types of training given in military service may help make up educational deficiencies and enable veterans to satisfy high school graduation requirements.

"In addition," stated Granger, "There are educational assistance grants from the Department of Veterans Affairs to widows and children of veterans who died due to wartime military service." He invited dependents of veterans wishing further information to drop in at the Veterans Service Office, in the Courthouse, Redwood City.

CITY FATHERS IN ACTION

It is ten minutes to two on a Monday afternoon. You walk into San Francisco's City Hall—highest dome in the country. Or is it the second highest? Anyway a towering dome, dignified, ornate, a little rococco.

A group of stout, red-faced men are lounging, smoking, on the steps. Lawyers? Politicians? City employees taking a break? Or just curious citizens like yourself, waiting for the Board of Supervisors to start their deliberations?

You don't know. But they look like they belong there, as if they had spent many afternoons on City Hall steps, figuring the angles, talking confidently through their cigarette smoke, their voices low and secretive, their eyes alert, weighing, evaluating the people who climb the stairs, their occasional laughter loud and hollow sounding.

You ride the elevator to the second floor and go to the clerk's room adjoining the chambers. You have heard you can pick up the day's calendar there. You stand at the counter. The typists and stenos are working and talking among themselves. They don't see you.

While you are waiting, an elderly man with a cane hobbles in. Looks like a pensioner—dressed neatly, inexpensively, his face lined with patience and age, his eyes flat and withdrawn. He goes to one end of the counter and picks up a long booklet from a pile.

You walk down to see what it is and learn that these are the calendars. Lou take one and follow him out. He limps to the double doors opening into the high-ceilinged chambers and you follow him.

It is a long, chandelier-hung room, divided into halves. In your half are rows of wooden benches with comfortable backs. You take a seat and examine the other half, cut off from you by a railing.

While you are looking, a short, portly man enters and takes the center one of three large leather seats high up on the rostrum. He clears his throat and adjusts the microphone on the desk before him. It is Dewey Mead, President of the Board of Supervisors.

A slim, silver-haired man with a calm, controlled face comes in and takes the leather seat on Mead's left. This is Chief Administrative Officer Brooks, present to answer questions should the Supervisors need special information about the City's operation. He sits quietly, relaxed and immobile, and although you noted his presence when he first entered you forget all about him, he is so self-effacing, until an hour or so later someone asks him a question.

On Mead's right, in the other leather chair, sits either the City Controller or the City Attorney, depending upon whose presence is needed to keep the lawmakers informed. Right now it is empty.

Below the presiding officer, but raised above floor level, sit three clerks, surrounded by folders, loose papers and files.

In a half oval, with the open end facing the rostrum, are the 11 swivel chairs of the supervisors. There is a desk and a microphone before each chair.

Behind the supervisors' chairs and on your left are chairs and a long table for the press. Across the room, cut off by another railing, is another row of chairs for city officials whose departments are involved in matters on the calendar.

It is nearly two o'clock now. The clerks take their seats below the rostrum and start shuffling papers. The city department heads, sober men in dark clothes, punctually fill up the row of chairs on the right.

A few supervisors, youngish, confident-looking men, stroll in. They smile and nod to Mead, the presiding officer, and pause to chat with each other.

A worried-looking reporter peers in, sees the empty press section and goes out again. More supervisors enter, some of them halting to smile and wave to friends in the spectators' section where you are sitting.

Mead clears his throat again and looks over the floor, obviously counting to see if he has a quorum yet. He lifts the gavel and pounds sharply. The reporters file in hurriedly. There is an increased hum of low voices, then, as the gavel falls again, silence.

Mead instructs the clerk to call the roll: Arnold, Christopher, Dobbs, Ferdon, Halley, present; Lewis, expected any moment; Mancuso, McAteer, McCarty, Mead, present; Sullivan, excused for illness.

The gavel cracks the silence. Supervisors, reporters, and city observers rise inside the rail. Spectators rise around you and you get up too. Mead leads the assemblage through a recital of the Pledge of Allegiance. You have forgotten the words and keep quiet but note that the pensioner with the cane joins in with relish.

The gavel pounds again. You sit down as the others do. There is a quick mumble as the journal of the last meeting is approved.

Next on the agenda is cummunications. First comes a letter from the City's Fair Rent Committee, signed by Chairman O'Shea, reporting that eight landlords have taken punitive action against tenants who complained of rent hikes.

Seven tenants were served with eviction notices because they dared to use the administrative setup to protect renters when controls were lifted. One got an additional raise after he complained about his first increase.

You perk up your ears because you are interested in this. You know that the previous week, when a similar communication came in, the supervisors refused to back up the fair rent committee they had created. They had filed the letter, equivalent to saying let's ignore it.

This time there is debate. Supervisor Mead recommends that the matter be referred to the public welfare committee. Supervisor McCarty rises to support the motion, warning that the fair rent committee must get official support if it is to function.

A roll call vote is taken, with Arnold, Christopher, Halley, McAteer, McCarty and Mead voting to investigate what appears to be vindictiveness of the landlords. Dobbs, Ferdon and Mancuso vote no. The ayes have it and more will be heard about the defiant landlords next week.

The Board takes up routine calendar matters. They deal with settling small claims against the City and approving concession agreements between professional golfers and City golf courses. You learn with surprise that two pro golfers pay a minimum rental of $100 a month to the City and a third pays $150.

The first seven questions are approved bang, bang, bang, nine ayes each time.

Supervisors Lewis arrives and there is a roll call vote on the 8th calendar matter, creating a senior clerk's job and abolishing two others in the bureau of architecture. Bang goes the gavel. Lewis votes with the others, ten ayes.

There are 81 questions on the calendar and the first 17 of them are passed unanimously.

No. 18 calls for approval of the new $6.27 tax rate. Supervisor Dobbs rises to point out that the 60 cent increase results from mandatory salary increases for city workers and from an increased education budget. These, he says, are two costs over which the Board has no control.

Supervisor McAteer rises and asks to be excused from voting. He says that as a newly appointed supervisor he wasn't present during the deliberations which resulted in the tax increase. He feels that, being uninformed, he is not qualified to vote.

Supervisor Mancuso jumps to his feet and talks eloquently and indignantly, saying every supervisor has the duty to vote on such matters as this, that, as Dobbs pointed out, the tax raise came as a result of conditions beyond the control of the supervisors and that they are all equally obliged to share the responsibility.

Other supervisors grab their microphones to support McAteer. They say common courtesy requires he be excused. McAteer announces that regardless of the Board's action to excuse him or not, he will not open his mouth on the tax rate question. Mancuso declares that if McAteer refuses to vote, he personally will vote no on the $6.27 tax rate.

A roll call is taken. The vote is eight to one for passage, with McAteer abstaining and Mancuso voting no.

This is the first explosion of the afternoon, but not the last.

Supervisor Lewis speaks with great heat and fine sincerity against a charter amendment that would remove two street car lines and substitute buses. Other city fathers attack his position by indirection. Lewis tries to put them on the spot but not one will say frankly he is for gasoline buses rather than trolley cars, though most of them use one or another sort of rationalization to justify their vote in the affirmative.

A little old lady sitting behind you keeps murmuring, "He's right, he's absolutely right," all through Lewis' speech and rebuttals. Then she leans over to ask you Lewis' name and you figure he's got one sure vote in the coming elections.

Suddenly you look at your watch and see you have been there two hours and are late for an appointment. You rise silently and tiptoe out, leaving the supervisors in the midst of a vociferous wrangle, hating to go. But your time has been well spent. You have been observing democracy in action.

OLPH MOTHERS CLUB MAKES PLANS FOR FIRST MEET OF SCHOOL YEAR

Mrs. Louis Thiebaut, president of the O.L.P.H. mothers' club, has announced that the first meeting of the new school year will be held tonight (Friday) at 8:15 p.m. in the school hall.

Donald R. Caziarc, hearing conservation specialist from the department of public health, will be guest speaker. Hospitality for the evening will be furnished by the first grade mothers with Mrs. Esther Nolan as chairman.

The mothers' club is one of the most successful organizations of O.L.P.H. Parish both socially and financially, according to Mrs. Thiebaut. During the year their many projects help to raise funds to supply the school and students with equipment or supplies which cannot be obtained with regular parish funds or facilities. All the mothers of the parish as well as women who are interested in the school are invited to attend the meetings.

The monthly whist parties, the winter bazaar and the spring fashion show are the main projects of the club. However, the weekly sewing circle which meets each Wednesday at 10:30 in the school hall enables the mothers to meet socially as well as make items for sale at the annual bazaar. Mrs. Peter Lofrano is the new chairman of the sewing circle.

For the students at O.L.P.H. new playground equipment was provided during the summer for the coming year as well as a bicycle rack. Also much appreciated by the school children were the raincoats which were provided for the traffic boys.

One of their most valuable enterprises was the testing of each school child's hearing last year. Mr. Caziarc, of the department of public health, trained ten of the mothers as audiometrists and they tested the school children. Upon completion of the full course the mothers will receive a certificate attesting to the fact that they have been trained to test hearing. The Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange, the teaching nuns of O.L.P.H. school, were particularly pleased with this project, explaining that it is of great assistance to the teachers as well as to the school children's parents.

The first social parish event of the year is the parish picnic which the mothers' club is assisting the Holy Name society to produce.

NEW EXECUTIVE NAMED FOR BSA DISTRICT JOB

A new District Scout Executive, Maurice F. Powers, has just been appointed by San Francisco Scout Executive Oscar C. Alverson to serve the more than 1500 Scouts and volunteer leaders of the Lake Merced area.

Powers arrived in San Francisco this week from Anchorage, Alaska, where he has served as Scout Executive of that Council since 1948. The new executive is already busy getting acquainted with local civic and community leaders and calling on representatives of the many institutions that sponsor the Scout program in this neighborhood.

He entered the Boy Scout movement as a boy in Seattle and then renewed his activities in Scouting while teaching junior high school at Wenatchee, Washington, from 1935-40. He served during that period as a Scoutmaster and District Commissioner and also acted as Camp Director.

"Four Vagabonds" At Golden Gate Theatre This Week

Vodvil returns to the RKO Golden Gate Theatre in San Francisco on Wednesday, September 9th when San Francisco's own "Vagabonds" opens a one week engagement with their all star revue.

The famous four Vagabonds, noted from coast to coast for their countless appearances on Arthur Godfrey's radio and TV shows, their many big-name theatre bookings and plush night club engagements, and their own widely known club in Miami, is a quartet composed of 3 Americans of Italian extraction and a Hawaiian Swede. They are Attilio Risso, the deadpan accordianist; the comedy pair of Dom Germano and Al Torriere who plays guitars and mandolins; and Pete Peterson, the combination buffoon and bass man.

The Vagabonds have a talent unique in show business. All they have to do is stand on a stage, deadpan their mugs toward the audience, and "salt." The audience, as if a roomful of octopi were tickling their armpits, immediately begin to laugh. "Salt" brings back to the audience memories of past performances in which every word, every musical note, brought on riotous laughter.

The Vagabonds began their career on San Francisco's radio station KSFO. Almost immediately their talent was recognized and rewarded with a long engagement at the Bal Tabarin, forerunner of the present 365 Club. For several years after that they had their own club, The Vagabonds, in San Francisco. During the war the quartet was disbanded, with three of its members joining the Merchant Marine and one joining the army. While in service they made personal appearances at hospitals, played with USO troupes, made movie shorts for the Office of War Information and made three full length movies for Columbia. The proceeds from these pictures went toward the erection of a chapel for the Merchant Marine Basic School at Coyote Point.

Snapdragons Good For Vibrant Color

Snapdragons give quick, vibrant color at little cost according to the Bedding Plant Advisory Board. When a sunny well-drained bed of rich loose soil is planted with some husky flat grown transplants of tetra snapdragons, rays of sunshine flood your winter garden.

Exciting news! At last there are tetra snaps in solid colors—white, yellow, pink and crimson and more on the way. Just what the exacting gardner, who plants to color charts, ordered. Of course, the beautiful mixtures of this wonderful strain are plentiful at your favorite garden center.

In tetra snapdragons we have an old garden favorite much improved—stronger stems, larger flowers so thick set along the stem that individual plants become showpieces. Scatter small plantings through the garden to brighten your days in the dull weather ahead. Needless to say, full bed plantings of tetra snapdragons will magnify this glorious beauty manyfold.

Nothing can surpass the beauty of a mixed bowl of snaps in the home. Even two or three tall stems of tetras will cause delighted comment.

Winter stocks are good companion material for snapdragon plantings, as flowering coincide closely and growth habits are similar. Many fine winter blooming annuals are available to border such a bed. Chief among these are the viola, pansy and primula malacoides. To have a step-down effect, plant your tetra snaps in the back-fronted by calendula, nemesia, or Iceland poppy and then border the bed with one of the good winter border plants. Such combination plantings will give good color until well into next spring.

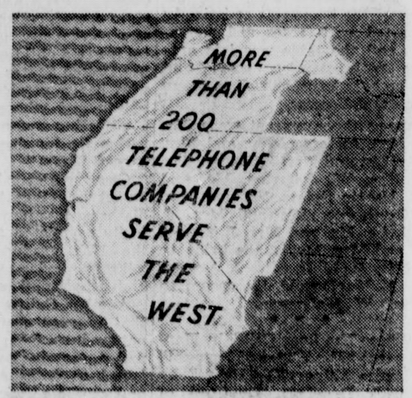
The West's 6,000,000th telephone was installed last week in the home of Master Sergeant (USMC) and Mrs. Lionel P. Williams.

WEST'S 6,000,000th TELEPHONE GOES TO WORK

Interstate Telegraph Company installs milestone instrument in Barstow, Calif.

A veteran of Korea and his wife are making calls this week over the West's 6,000,000th telephone. It was installed September 2nd by the Interstate Telegraph Company (an affiliate of the California Electric Power Company) which provides telephone service in Barstow and the surrounding territory. The Williams' telephone brings the total in the West to almost double what it was at the end of World War II — a remarkable growth record made possible by the combined efforts of more than 200 telephone companies.



It may surprise you to know that the West is served by more than 200 different telephone companies and the U. S. by over 5,200 companies. And the teamwork among them makes it possible for any telephone in the West to be connected with any of the 49,000,000 telephones in America. Surely one important reason for the West's sound growth is the cooperation among the telephone companies which serve it.

Telephone business is a community business

The telephone business is essentially a local business. Ninety percent of all telephone calls are local calls. And in the hundreds of communities served by the West's telephone companies, local people — your friends and neighbors — provide your telephone service, working constantly to furnish good service at low cost.

The Outdoors

Duck Plan

SACRAMENTO — A practical plan under which California duck shooters can assist in reducing crop drepredations by feeding waterfowl on duck hunting grounds will be acted on September 10th at a special meeting of the California Fish and Game Commission in San Francisco.

Individuals or organizations with suggestions for setting up the feeding program are invited to attend the meeting, scheduled for 10 a.m. in the State Building, Room 367, Civic Center, in the bay city.

Duck hunting groups desiring to feed waterfowl will be requested to apply for a feeding permit between September 10th and September 25th. It is proposed that the fee for the permit by $1.00.

Basic requirements of the proposed feeding program are as follows:

The flooding and feeding program must be put into operation on or before October 1st and continued throughout the season. The area in which feeding will take place cannot be closer than 200 yards of any shooting blinds or other point where hunters are trying to take ducks. Feed placed nearer than 200 yards to blinds prior to opening of the season must be cleaned up at least 24 hours before the season opens. The feeding area must tentatively located at the time the permit is sought and must be posted to avoid violations.

The proposed feeding regulations will be considered at the same meeting at which the commissioners plan to put official approval on the new waterfowl season regulations set up by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Applications for permits are now available at regional offices of the California Department of Fish and Game. Their addresses and phone numbers are: Redding, 627 Cypress street, phone 851; San Francisco, Ferry Building, GArfield 1-8623; Sacramento, 725½ Jay street, GI. 2-4711, Ext. 5316; Fresno, 1312 Blackstone, phone 4-4719; and Los Angeles, 310 Calif. State Bldg., MAdison 6-1515, Ext. 2201.

Sardines Vanish

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Fish and Game Commission has officially acknowledged that there are virtually no sardines left off California's coast.

The acknowledgement came at the Commission's August 28 meeting, at which the fish and game body refused to renew any sardine reduction permits.

Commission President William J. Silva pointed out that this was merely acceptance of the fact that California's sardine catch, which once reached over a half a million tons a year, has dwindled to practically nothing.

The Commission had been powerless to stop this depletion, Silva said. Armed with regulatory power over the reduction plants only, it had had no control at all over the canneries, which take by far the greatest number of these once plentiful California fish.

The sardine catch for 1950-51, the last good year, was 355,000 tons, of which only 36,000 tons was used by the reductionists, Department of Fish and Game records show. In 1951-52 the catch fell to 136,000 tons, and only 1,000 tons of this was taken for reduction. In the 1952-53 season, a mere 3,600 tons was taken—hardly a single night's haul in the days when California's sardines were plentiful, it was pointed out. Only 11 tons of these were used by the Commission-regulated reductionists.

The reductionists can re-apply for permits at any time, and the Commission must act on such applications within 30 days, Silva stated. Canners can take unlimited quantities of the fish for canning, without permit.

Bad Judgement

ROSEVILLE—Monumental bad judgement was shown by three Placer County youths hunting doves on August 31, the day before season opening. They bagged illegal bird only 150 yards from a California Department of Fish and Game pistol range, and the 18 wardens there converged on the young culprits. The boys, highly bewildered, got off with a warning.

Seismic Exploration

SAN FRANCISCO—Permits for continuing seismic exploration off the coast of Santa Barbara were granted to three oil companies by the California Fish and Game Commission at its August 28 meeting, over the vociferous protests of Santa Barbara councilman Joseph J. Callahan and District Attorney Fern B. Thomas.

The Commission followed the lead of the State Lands Commission, which previously conducted a detailed hearing on the controversial operations and also issued permits for the explorations.

The Commission also: Continued until its next meeting the hearing on the proposed cancellation of a commercial abalone diving permit held by Donald Lee Hockstetler; simplified rules for importation of spiny lobsters during the California closed season; deferred action on a new game depredations control policy until the next regular meeting; approved renewal of 18 private game bird licenses; okehed processing of predator bounty applications in the five regional offices instead of at the Sacramento headquarters; and closed the Salton Sea to the taking of shellfish, to permit establishment of a sports fishery there.

Fifty-four shrimp fishermen were granted an extension of their permits to allow them to continue fishing through September 30, the end of the regular season, on the shrimp and prawn beds recently discovered by Department of Fish and Game research teams. This action takes care of a technicality in the law.

Importation of the coosa bass, a warmwater species popular in Tennessee, was approved for experimental planting in limited test waters. This had been recommended by Alex Calhoun, inland fisheries branch chief.

A request was denied for deviation from the established policy of not allowing private or State planting of fish in streams to which the public does not have access. In discussing a proposal made by Jack Okell of the North Fork Association, American River, the Commissioners pointed out that granting such an exception would set a dangerous precedent which might close scores of waters now available for public fishing. The commission now requires that the public be granted access to at least one-third of any stream planted with domestically raised fish. Permits are required for private planting of any waters in the State.

Bear damage complaints from Humboldt, Del Norte and Siskiyou County livestock and timber operators were heard and new, more liberalized bear damage permits were authorized. Bears are causing measureable damage by girdling redwood and fir timber stands as well as killing livestock, landowners and Department game men told the Commission.

The Commission's next regular meeting will be held in San Diego October 22.

Shellfish Out

SAN FRANCISCO—The taking of shellfish in the Salton Sea has been temporarily prohibited under a new ruling passed by the California Fish and Game Commission at its August 28 meeting.

The closure was needed to protect Department of Fish and Game experimental plantings of clams and oysters in Imperial county's huge salt-water lake. The ban will be lifted as soon as the shellfish have solidly established themselves, the Commission emphasized.

The clams and oysters have been planted as part of a Department program to develop the Salton Sea as a sportfishing area. Aside from thier importance to clam-diggers and oyster-seekers, the shelfish will also serve as food for the gamefish the Department is trying to introduce.

Already one small species of croaker, a popular Southern California ocean fish, is well on the way toward establishing itself, the Commission was told.

Salmon Spawn

SACRAMENTO—Migrating salmon will run up the American river to their usual spawning grounds this fall in spite of construction work on the new Nimbus Dam near Sacramento.

This assurance was given by the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation at a recent meeting with representatives of the California Department of Fish and Game and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The agreement to make "adequate provision" for the upstream-bound salmon and steelhead was reached after recommendations were made in a joint report of the two conservation agencies.

Through two 18-foot gaps which will be left in the uncompleted dam, the fish will proceed on their annual egg-laying mission. A baffle-type fishway, or ladder, is also being built in one of the gaps, in case the water gets too swift in early storms.

The two conservation agencies have also recommended that a "pilot plant" hatchery be put in operation below the dam in time for the fall run next year, when construction will have closed the gaps and the salmon and steelhead will no longer be able to go upstream to spawn. This proposal is now being studied in Washington.

Workers at the hatchery would trap the salmon, remove the spawn and milt, and tend the eggs until the fry hatched out and could be released back into the river.

The pilot plant would be expanded into a permanent installation when the giant Folsom-Nimbus dam project is completed.

MANY USES FOR NICKELS

Until about half a century ago there was little demand for nickel except for nickel-plating, for nickel coins, in the alloy nickel silver used to make certain household articles, and as a base for silver-plated ware. Since that time, and especially since 1921, hundreds of additional uses have been discovered for this metal, largely through scientific research.

The vast electrolytic nickel refinery of International Nickel at Port Colborne, Ontario, covers twelve acres of ground.

SARTO CLUB DUMPS ORISKANY TO CLAIM SEVENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

The Sarto A.C. swept to their seventh straight win Sunday, downing U.S.S. Oriskany, 4 to 2, with Chucker Leo Giannechine allowing only four safeties.

It marked the second time the local club had topped the Navy men, having won an earlier contest, 7 to 6.

The win, seventh in a row for the Sartomen, gave them a season record of 14-4.

Giannechine had complete control of the situation in all but the seventh and eighth innings, when double plays by his teammates doused the Oriskany rallies.

This Sunday the Sarto club meets Molkenbuhr brothers at 2 p.m. on the Marchbanks diamond.

SILVESTRI VIES IN COUNTY GOLF PLAY

Bob Silvestri, California state amateur golf champ from Daly City, will tangle with Richard Opperman Sunday in the second flight of the first round in the 1953 San Mateo County championships.

Silvestri is scheduled to begin his round at 8:12 a.m.

LOCAL REC PROGRAM ATTRACTS 46,099

Daly City's summer recreation program attracted an attendance of 46,099 this year, according to James Mason, recreation director.

A breakdown by months showed: June, 13,847; July, 15,908; August, 16,344.

Attendance at playgrounds, recreation centers and special functions was taken into consideration in the over-all count.

SMJC ENTERS SECOND WEEK OF GRID PLAY

San Mateo Junior college started its second week of football practice Tuesday afternoon, after a layoff Monday, and will have daily practice at 3:30 each afternoon on the Coyote Point campus field. Coach Duane Whitehead was well pleased with workouts during the first week.

Twenty-five players were able to report back early for conditioning workout last week, and the number of gridders was doubled Tuesday as more players quit their summer jobs and got ready to register for the fall semester at the junior college.

Backfield coach Dell Fishback and line coach Herb Hudson also reported back Tuesday, bringing the coaching staff up to full strength.

Jefferson High School Expects 1200 This Fall

Jefferson Union high school opens for the new school year on Monday, September 14. Some twelve hundred fifty students are expected to enroll this fall. Of these about three hundred seventy-five will be freshmen.

New students, who have moved into the community since school closed in June, are asked to enroll September 10 or 11.

The school buses will follow the same schedule as last year. An additional seventy-two passenger bus has been purchased to care for the increased number of students to be transported. Buses leave as follows: Pedro Point 7:40; Sharp Park 7:50; Pacific Manor 7:50; Westlake 7:50 and 8:00; Brisbane 7:10 and 7:50; Bayshore 7:55.

All freshmen will meet in the gymnasium for assembly at 8:26 the opening day. All other students assemble in the auditorium at the same time.

Following the assembly students will meet in their home rooms, complete their registration and receive copies of their programs. They will then follow the regular schedule, with periods shortened. School will close at three o'clock, the usual time.

Books will be issued and assignments made, so all students should register on the opening day.

School Time Is Time For Motorists To Review Laws

"It's September again, and September means school. As youngsters up and down the state prepare to return to classes every motorist should review, once again, the traffic rules governing schools and school buses," observes B. R. Caldwell, California Highway Patrol Commissioner.

"Every motorist knows that 15 miles per hour is the maximum speed for passing a school when children may be on the grounds. Cautious motorists also know they must stop when they see the flashing red lights on any school bus. What many motorists do not seem to understand is that they must remain standing until the lights cease to flash.

"By observing these simple rules of courtesy and safe driving motorists afford the best possible protection to children," the Commissioner comments.

Last year there were 326 traffic accidents involving school buses transporting pupils. Four persons, two of them students, were killed in these collisions.

"We can never be sure what children may do, for many times they aren't sure themselves until it has happened. The California Highway Patrol will do everything possible to see the children back to school safely, but motorists must help too. Drive carefully and obey the rules," Caldwell adds.

SUSPENSION GIVEN TO LOCAL MOTORISTS

Three Daly City drivers received suspension of their licenses recently, according to a report released by the state department of motor vehicles.

Those receiving suspensions were: David Calvin McGee Jr., 119 Hillcrest drive; Modesto Pina, 871 Brunswick street; and Paul Burton Woodall, 278 Irvington street.

LONG TERM ENLISTEE TO GET ARMY SCHOOL PREFERENCE

High school graduates who enlist in the Army for a period of at least three years will now be given preference for attendance in any of the Army's 64 technical schools, M/Sgt. O. G. Yeater of the local Army and Air Force Recruiting Station announced today.

The new policy is designed to eliminate expensive training caused by graduates who remain in the service for a relatively short period of time. Longer terms of enlistment are expected to result in reduction of the student load and greater periods of utilization, it was stated.

Qualified applicants may apply simultaneously for Army enlistment and one of the technical schools, and thus be guaranteed of an opening in a specific school after completing basic training.

Courses are offered in fields such as guided missiles, radio maintenance, artillery fire control, surveying, airplane and engine maintenance, sound recording, photography and refrigeration equipment repair.

Further information is available at the Army and Air Force Recruiting Office, 307 Second avenue, San Mateo.

Adult Classes Open At Balboa High School

The fall term of the adult classes held at Balboa high school, Onondago and Cayuga streets, will open on Monday night, Sept. 14. All classes are held from 7 to 9 and people may enroll at the school on Monday and Wednesday nights.

Classes offered include beginning and advanced English for foreign speaking people, cabinet shop, citizenship, dressmaking, radio and electric shop, real estate, shorthand and typing.

The adult education classes at Balboa are offered without charge as a service of the San Francisco public schools. Registration is open for all who wish to enroll. For further information call Mission Adult School — HEmlock 1-4899.

Freedom From Controls Helps Safeway Reach All-Time High Says Data

Lingan A. Warren, president of Safeway Stores, in his semi-annual report released today told stockholders that "freedom from controls, plus a continuation of present business conditions, should enable Safeway to maintain favorabe profit margins during the balance of the year. The unfair and discriminatory requirements of the control regulations in 1952 had a particularly injurious effect upon your company because of the emphasis placed by it on the sale of high quality, waste-free meats, its policy of performing pre-retail store functions wherever practicable and the location of its stores in areas where the nationwide cost averages used in the regulations were insufficient to meet operating expenses."

Total net sales for the entire Safeway operation were reported at $787,578,737 for the first 24 weeks in 1953. This is an increase of $55,894,552 or 7.64 per cent greater than total net sales for the same 24 week period in 1952.

The net profit, according to the semi-annual statement, was $6,-192,932 for the 24 week period. After deducting preferred dividends, this is equal to $1.83 per share on 2,874,651 shares, the average number of shares of common stock outstanding during the period. These earnings compare with $2,759,097 or $.78 per share on 2,827,701 shares, the average number outstanding during the first 24 weeks in 1952.

Warren also announced that on June 13, 1953, Safeway operated 1926 retail stores in the United States and 139 retail stores in Canada, a total of 2,065. Average weekly sales of the retail stores then in operation were $15,557 in the United States and $16,192 in Canada. Ten new retail stores in the United States and one in Canada were opened during this period in 1953. In addition major remodeling jobs were completed at another 75 retail stores in the United States and 4 retail stores in Canada.

LAW IN ACTION

SUFFICIENT CONSIDERATION IN CONTRACTS

A contract needs to provide for a "sufficient consideration." Each party must receive something. Suppose you promise to deliver your car to me in return for $700. The "consideration" I receive is your car, and your "consideration" is my $700.

Suppose I plan to add a room on my house which cuts off your view. You say: "Don't build that room and I'll give you my car." If I do not build it, my forbearance makes your promise binding. Out of this transaction, we both get something we want—a consideration.

The consideration may be an object, a promise, or an act. The law says only that such considerations must have value in the eyes of both parties.

Informal Contracts

Many think that contracts are set up amidst coils of red tape. But most contracts are informal. Mere hand signals in the Chicago Pit show the consent of the parties to the prices and amounts of grain bought and sold. A housewife doing her shopping enters into many informal contracts every week without knowing it.

Formal Contracts

Some contracts must be in writing and signed by all parties, before the law will enforce them.

What kind of contracts must be put into writing? Any kind which will not be performed within a year, such as an agreement to rent a house for 18 months; a promise to stand good for another's debts; a marriage contract which involves property; a sale of goods worth more than $500; a sale of real property.

There are some exceptions such as where I make part payment on goods over $500, or deliver to the other party a part of the goods, or let another build a house on my property. But even where there is partial performance, it always helps to avoid confusion and expense to have a clearly written contract.

NICKEL SILVER

The ancient Chinese were the first to produce the alloy known today as nickel silver. They called this metal—a combination of nickel, copper and zinc—"paktong," which meant "white copper." The alloy was later referred to as German silver and finally as nickel silver.

NORTH OF THE ARCTIC CIRCLE-(FHTNC)—Early in August five U. S. Navy and Coast Guard vessels pushed off from East Coast ports, escorting loaded stores ships to resupply isolated weather stations in the far north. The operation was called NANOOK 53 and the fleet consisted of the attack cargo ship USS Wyandot, the gasoline and diesel oil tanker USS Nespelen, the Navy icebreaker USS Staten Island, and two Coast Guard icebreakers, the USCGC Eastwind and the USCGC Westwind. There were also several merchant supply vessels. In the upper photo the ice breaker USS Staten Island escorts the Monroe Victory and the USMS Nodaway thrbugh a patch of thinly scattered ice in Frobisher Bay, prior to departure for Resolute Bay. At lower left Navy Cdr. F. M. Smith, veteran arctic skipper, raises the Polar Bear flag as a climax of ceremonies aboard the Staten Island when that vessel crossed the Arctic Circle. At lower right Navy Lt. Malcolm S. Jones, Jr., director of Project MUSHRAT for the Office of Naval Research, supervises the filling of one of the giant helium balloons being used to carry the Navy's deacon rockets high into the stratosphere before being fired to record-shattering heights for the purpose of collecting upper air and cosmic research data.

Knowledge is Power

2. WHAT ARE THE TWO MAGIC QUESTIONS?

(1) Brigadier General Bonner Fellers, U. S. Army, Retired, doesn't think so. In his book, "Wings for Peace," he states that "We do not have the men to handle even the satellite wars in Indo-China and Korea." He urges that we discard our old concept of war "in which our armed masses meet enemy armed masses. Under the conditions we now face, mass combat will destroy us.

"The best defense of Paris and Chicago is our ability instantly to destroy Moscow. It is this certain retaliation in the form of total destruction which is the true war deterrent, one the Russians can understand. If America does achieve air supremacy, there will be no war. . . . We do not now have an adequate strategic air force. We have not even decided to build it. And it will take three to five years to build it after we have made the decision. Building such a force must have first priority."

(2) A California psychologist discovered two questions which reveal much about a person's personality. (a) If you were an animal, what animal would you choose to be? (b) Why? The reply to the second question reveals what the person is really like. Take the man who wished to be a dog, because "Dogs are usually well fed, sheltered, and all their needs are taken care of." This fellow lacks confidence in himself and tends to lean on others. John E. Gibson describes the question technique in "This Week" magazine.

(3) Books on religious subjects have been among the 10 best sellers of fiction as well as nonfiction since 1949, according to Eugene Exnam, head of the religion department of Harper & Brothers, book publishers. In 1949, four of every five nonfiction best sellers had religious titles. The volume of religious books published in this country in 1947 was nearly three and a half times that of 1937.

MEDICAL CARE IN KOREA
by Science Features

Medical care afforded wounded soldiers in the Korean War was the best in history. Fatalities totalled only 2.3 per cent of all wounded, compared with 4.5 per cent in World War II and 8.1 per cent in World War I.

According to the Army Medical Service, which compiled these statistics, several recent advances in medical science contributed heavily to the lowered mortality rate. One was the availability of antibiotics like penicillin and terramycin to combat infection. Penicillin was not available in World War II until late in the hostilities.

Another important factor in saving lives was the use of whole blood for transfusions even in forward fighting areas. A third was the introduction of Mobile Army Surgical Hospitals, which made it possible to bring top-flight surgical care into the combat zone.

The use of helicopter "flying ambulances" to bring seriously wounded men to rear-area hospitals where they could be given complete medical care with a minimum of delay also helped cut the fatality rate, the Army reported. Wounded were often transported by air to base hospitals in Japan for further treatment.

In addition to saving lives, these and other scientific advances made it possible for 88 out of every 100 casualties in Korea to return to duty. In World War II the figure was only 77 out of every 100.

State Civil Service Examinations Slated

Seven state exams with September 18 final application dates were announced by the State Personnel Board today.

Women's parole officers need three year's experience as social case workers, at least a year of this in probation or parole work, or occupational counseling or placement.

Research technicians require three years' technical research or statistical experience, including a year in population research.

A closing date of September 25 was set on two additional exams for assistant and associate estimator of building construction. Assistants receive $415-$505 per month; associates, $505-$613.

SINGAPORE

The International Half-Way House

By Captain Damon E. Eckles

A squadron of American B-29s, based in the Philippines recently "attacked" the British colony of Singapore in Malaya. Don't be alarmed though, the United States and Great Britain are not on the warpath against each other.

As Public Information Officer of the 13th Air Force, I was assigned to accompany a flight of our 581st Air Resupply & Communications Squadron B-29s for a mock bombing attack on Britain's Far East stronghold. Our mission was to "hit" the colony from an altitude of 23,000 feet and attempt to evade interception by Royal Air Force aircraft. This is how it all took place.

You don't have to have insomnia to be in the Air Force . . . but it would sure help. Up at 2 a.m. in preparation for a 5 o'clock take off, it reminded me of the old Army game of "Hurry up . . . and wait." On my way to the flight line where I was to board one of three B-29s, I grumbled several choice epitaphs covering everyone from the flight leader on down, any one of which if overheard would have considerably hastened my return to civilian status.

As I stumbled out of the jeep in front of the plane to which I had been asigned, it loomed out of the darkness like some great prehistoric monster. I just can't get used to the fact that a B-29 is now only considered a "medium bomber." It still looks huge to me.

As my eyes became adjusted to the glare of the work lights, I noticed that there were men swarming over the plane like ants on a lump of sugar. As I watched, I suddenly realized something that few laymen ever consider. It takes one hell of a lot of work on the ground to insure a safe trip in the air.

Pre-Flight Briefing

At last we were ready for our pre-flight briefing. Our Flight Leader was Colonel Carey O'Bryan, Deputy for Operations of 13th Air Force, and a big man in every sense of the word. At the outbreak of World War II he was a Lieutenant stationed here at Clark, and he has flown over just about every square foot of territory in the South Pacific. "This will not be an easy flight," he said, "we will be in the air at least twelve hours and much of the flight over Malaya will be at low level." At this point I would like to mention that although the B-29 has an unbeatable combat record, I have never heard of it winning any honors from a comfort standpoint. The thought of twelve hours in a cramped position instead of the five and one half or six hours normal flight to Singapore was not greeted with any great enthusiasm. However, no one mentioned this to the Colonel. After all, if his huge six foot four inch frame could stand it, so could we.

"We are going on this trip for several reasons," the Colonel continued. "First of all, it will give the RAF a chance to check their defenses in the air and give their fighter pilots much needed interceptor practice. Secondly, it will give us a chance to test our bombing capabilities at long range under simulated attack. Thirdly, it will again provide an opportunity for our Officers and Airmen to mingle with their in an effort to enhance the feeling of good fellowship and cooperation which already exists between our two great countries. And finally, it will again serve notice on those who would oppress the will of free people anywhere, that Uncle Sam is ready and able to strike fast and hard, should the need ever arise."

Daly City Man Along

One of the men on this mission was Staff Sergeant Theodore Goodson, husband of Mrs. Opal Goodson and son of Mrs. Vilma D. Coombs, 255 Wyandotte street, Daly City. Sergeant Goodson is currently serving a tour of duty with the U. S. Air Force in the Philippines. He is assigned to the 581st Air Resupply and Communications Wing on Clark Air Force Base, located 60 miles north of Manila.

The Daly City airman joined the U. S. Air Force in July, 1951, and completed an aircraft and engine mechanics course at Sheppard AFB, Texas, before coming to the Philippines in July, 1952.

Our take off and flight to Singapore was uneventful. Our pilot, Major Peyton B. Sparks, is so good that, according to his crew chief, he could literally "fly the crates the plane came in." The other plane commanders were Captain Mahlin A. Hillebrand and Captain Mike Volpicelli, all of the 581st AR Squadron.

Our mock attack on Singapore was all too successful for the British, since the first interception by their jets was well inside the fifty mile safety radius, and although their pilots handled their part of the mission successfully, the test showed tht they needed to tighten up their warning and communications networks. This, according to Air Marshall Sir Clifford Sanderson, was good to know and made the mission exceptionally worthwhile. After our interception at 23,000 feet, we let down to 1,500 feet and accompanied by the twelve Campire jet fighters of the RAF, we circled over Singapore twice before continuing on to the RAF island bomb range off Penang in Northern Malaya. Malaya from the air is not a pleansant sight. Especially since the viewer must contemplate the ever present possibility of a bail out over a territory in which there are no roads visable . . . a tremendous jungle growth inhabited by wild beasts, deadly snakes and insects plus the ever present possibility of confronting a native Communist, which according to the British, are a far worse menace than the jungle wild life. As you know, Malaya is the scene of a long, drawn out and bitter struggle between the supporters of freedom and those who would impose Communism. It is also one of the world's chief sources of rubber and tin. It was interesting to note that all of the homes surrounding these rubber plantations and tin ore mines were extremely fine. Except for the barricade around each little settlement, one would think they were American villages. There were no signs of poverty from the air, indicating that even the laborers enjoyed an exceptionally high standard of living. Communist terrorists are a constant threat to these communities, but under the great leadership of General Sir Gerald Templer, the situation is much better than it was a year ago.

Harrassed By Vampires

After flying from one end of Malaya to the other at low altitude, we climbed again to 25,000 feet for our return to Singapore. From there on until we landed, we were constantly harrassed by the Vampire jets and the twin engine prop-driven Hornets which would dive out of the clouds at us in a pass which would surely have liquidated us had they really been firing. I watched from the top blister of our B-29 and I was certainly glad that our lives didn't depend upon my ability to spot those Vampires, for they would be on our tail and gone again before I could even get my camera set.

Upon landing at Changi terminal, we were met by Air Marshall Sir Clifford Sanderson, RAF Commander, Far East and Group Captain J. M. Warfield, Commanding Officer of Changi Air Base plus a host of other RAF officers and press and radio men. After interviews were over, we were taken on a fast trip through customs, had our money changed and the airmen were off to the Airmen's Club, while the officers were taken to the Temple Hill Mess and Billet. Our quarters were fine, and the hospitality extended by our hosts unbeatable. I don't know how the American conception of a Brisher developed, but it certainly is 360 degrees wrong based on comparisons of the officers I met. Never have I seen a more jovial, joke-cracking, affable group of men. It seemed to me that they got the point of our stories even quicker than we did theirs . . . and some of the games they play at their parties . . . makes our football games look like a ladies' tea party. These guys are rough and always ready for a good skull crushing party. For instance, can you imagine Americans playing a friendly little game called "Are you there, Moriellie?" To play this, you lie down on the floor facing your opponent . . . the wrist of your left hand is then bound tightly to the wrist of your opponent's hand. Then both contestants are blindfolded and given either a board, a magazine, or a rolled newspaper, depending on what is available. Then one man says, "Are you there, Moriellie?" and the other answers "Yes"; whereupon, the man who asked the question swings at where he thinks his opponent's head will be. Of course, you can move but knowing just where to move is the problem. Then, when things begin to get dull, they light the newspapers with a torch and you proceed to try and singe each other's noggin.

First call from the new telephone in the Barstow home of Master Sergeant and Mrs. Lionel P. Williams was to Mrs. Williams' parents in Wales, North Dakota. The Williams' telephone is the sixth millionth on the Pacific Coast. The milestone instrument is blue, bears a special plaque and is theirs to keep.

Jolly good sport, eh wot? Time doesn't permit description of the other games they play, but some of them are enough to make your blood run cold. High spot of the evening's entertainment, however, was a performance by their Scottish Pipers. This 27 piece bagpipe and drum unit was under the direction of Flight Sgt. Kieth Falconer and was the finest I've ever heard. They put on a show fit for a King.

Cocktail Party

After the cocktail party on the night of our arrival, we were given the next day off to sight see and shop in Singapore. Singapura . . . the lion city . . . all my life I've dreamed of seeing this city and I was not disappointed. It is truly the Occident's gateway to the East and the Orient's gateway to the West . . . a sort of International Half-Way House. The history of Singapore trails back into the mists of time. Historians report that six thousand years before Christ, the ancestors of the Australian aborigine passed through on their island-hopping migration to new homes. It has successively felt the influence of the Indian, the Malay, the Javanese, the Briton, and the Chinese. The name Singapore is not a Malay one. It comes from two Sanskrit words "Singa Pura" . . . meaning Lion City. A little over a million people live on Singapore Island. The Chinese, with the highest birth rate, outnumber the other races in the colony and comprise 77 per cent of the population. Many parts of the city are reminiscent of the lower coasts of Florida where tall cocoanut palms hang gracefuly out over the water. The weather was fine while we were there, a little cooler than here at Clark; however, the climate generally is very hot and humid. There is just too much of Singapore to see everything in one day, but we did hit the highlights and to me, the city was much more fascinating than Hongkong.

Risky Business

On my last trip by B-29, I wrote a story about a rare photograph which I was lucky enough to take. This story could have been written about the picture I didn't take. We were flying at about 11,000 feet approaching the bombing range at Penang on the third day of our visit. The RAF were again practicing interceptions. I was wearing a pair of ear-phones hooked up to the plane's intercom unit and was enjoying the chatter of Staff Sergeant Charles Miller and S/Sgt. Arthur Bray, scanners on our plane, as they reported their sightings to the plane commander. Suddenly I heard Colonel O'Bryan's voice calling Sgt. Miller. "Tell Captain Eckles to tighten his parachute straps. . . I'm going to depressurize the cabin and I want you to open the hatchway and hang onto his feet while he takes a picture of our bomb salvo."

At first I thought it was a gag. Me? a PIO? hang out over an open bomb-bay at 11,000 feet and take pictures????? Ridiculous! Impossible! Fantastic! It'll nebber Hoppen. . . . I did it, though! Suddenly S/Sgt. Bray and Lt. Leibert, who were hanging onto my ankles as I inched toward the open hatchway, appeared very small. I was not at all sure they could hold me in the ship. I peered over the edge. The wind smacked me in the face like a wet towel. I looked back at S/Sgt. Miller. He was grinning. I thought, "Go on and grin, Buster, I'll bet you're glad you're not checked out with this camera." I finally leaned out over the edge . . . nothing happened . . . I saw the island we were going to bomb approaching in the distance. It appeared to be about the size of a fly in a glass of milk. I looked at the bombs resting nonchallantly in their racks. They looked blue and cold. I think I did too. My camera was complaining. The folds in the sides were vibrating so hard I could hardly hold on to it. And then . . . Bombs away! I snapped the camera . . . nothing happened. . . . Frantically I tore away the number two flap and snapped again . . . by now the bombs were well on the way to the target. . . . Just then someone shifted his hold on my left foot, and I thought for a second I was going to get a close look at the results. By now I could see my camera was broken. I motioned I was finished. I was!

Supt. Of Schools Completes Roster

The office of the San Mateo county superintendent of schools has completed its roster of professional personnel for the coming year, James R. Tormey, county superintendent, announced recently. Vacancies had occurred during the summer, Tormey reported, because of the resignation of staff members from the curriculum department, and because of additional contracts made with schools throughout the county for the services of the county guidance department.

New staff members include John G. Shrock, school psychologist, Mrs. Tillie Bennett King, consultant in elementary education, and Mrs. Elsie McDougall, consultant in elementary education.

John Shrock received his A.B. and M.A. from Albion college, Albion, Michigan, and also attended the University of California at Berkeley and the University of Minnesota. He received his doctorate in education from Stanford University. Dr. Shrock's experience in the field of psychology includes vocational work with the Veteran's Administration Regional Office, San Francisco; assistant psychologist and psychiatric social worker with the U. S. Army, and counseling with students in the department of fine arts at Albion.

Mrs. Tillie King received her training at the University of California, Berkeley. She has recently completed one year as a counselor at Pacific Grove high school, Pacific Grove, California. Mrs. King spent four years with the American dependent's schools in Germany as a supervising principal and teacher of elementary grades. Previous to this, she was superintendent and supervising principal in the Templeton School district, San Luis Obispo county. Mrs. King will serve as county school consultant in the Coastside, Laguna Salada and Tunis districts.

Mrs. Elsie McDougall has taught at Addison Elementary school, Palo Alto, for the past three years. Previously she was with the Contra Costa county and Alameda county school districts. Her experience includes all elementary grades, remedial reading and supervision of recreation programs. Mrs. McDougall attended Sacramento State college and received her A.B. from San Francisco State college. She was awarded her M.A. and her credential in supervision and administration from Stanford University. She will serve La Honda, Pescadero and Montara districts as well as working with the county office's special education program.

Applicants must be from 19 to 26½ years old, be unmarried during the training period, in good physical condition and have a high school educational level.

Training includes courses in navigation, bombardment, radar operation, electronic countermeasures, aircraft performance monitoring, and airborne armament operations.

Aviation Maintenance Jobs Are Open Under New Air Force Program

The Army has initiated a new program for direct enlistment of qualified applicants into aviation maintenance, M/Sgt. O. G. Yeater of the local Army and Air Force Recruiting Station announced today.

"An urgent need exists for airplane mechanics, airframe mechanics, and helicopter mechanics," he stated.

"Men of draft age who want to fulfill their obligations may use the program to further professional training and to utilize civilian aviation school training," he said.

"The training and experience received in the army will be equally valuable in civilian or military careers," he added.

In order to be eligible for the direct enlistment program, men must possess a diploma or certificate indicating completion of CAA-approved training in one of the aviation maintenance specialties, possess a CAA license to function in one of the specialties, or present evidence of satisfactory work in one of the specialties for at least a one-year period.
